Free Meals for Federal Workers in Rocky River Thanks to Two Local Businesses

ROCKY RIVER, OHIO – Owners at Bearden's, home of the famous steak burgers, and Sixth City Marketing, a digital marketing agency located in Rocky River, have teamed up to provide free meals to federal workers in the area who have been affected by the government shutdown.

This Thursday, January 24, 2019, federal workers can come into the Bearden's restaurant for a free burger and fries between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. They just need to show an employee ID when ordering. There will be a limit of one burger and fries per federal employee.

"I interned at the NASA Glenn Research Center when I was younger and still have friends and family who work there," said John Sammon, founder and CEO of Sixth City Marketing. "I see how the government shutdown is affecting all of them and I just wanted to do something to help."

Sammon, a frequent patron of Bearden's and a Rocky River business owner, originally wanted to provide a food truck for federal employees, but after speaking to Bearden's General Manager Michael McBride the two decided that they would be able to help more people by hosting the event at the restaurant.

"Our goal is to reach as many people in the community as possible," said Sammon. "We just want to let them know that we're here and we're thinking about them."

Any federal employee wishing to take part in the free meal should visit the Bearden's restaurant located at 19985 Lake Rd in Rocky River, Ohio.

Any questions about the event can be directed to John Sammon at john@sixthcitymarketing.com or by phone at 440-821-1425.
